CITY AND COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

SUNDAY.....NOV. 1, 1874.

THE SUTRO campaign in Nevada has proved as great a failure as SUTRO's celebrated tunnel.

The elections on Tuesday next will decide the political complexion of the House of Representatives. The opinion of old politicians is that the Democrats will have a majority in that body.

The Express thinks it would not be a good plan to elect a Mayor who has "set notions on every subject." Our contemporary exposes its policy in this expression. It prefers a candidate who has no notion on any subject except such as he receives from the gas and water companies. The people differ with the Express on this point. They do want a man with "set notions"—notions so fixed that the ring can neither wield nor control him.

Our little evening contemporary has taken a new tack. The school report has exploded its story about the ravages of the scarletina, and it now asserts that the fine weather and the "hygiene of our climate" renders our sanitary condition such that we can afford to brag of it. This is pleasant reading in the columns of a paper that only a few days ago announced to the world that the scarletina was depopulating our homes—all because Mr. BEAUDRY is the people's candidate for Mayor and the ring which makes our little contemporary its organ and tool, desires his defeat.

Los Angeles and San Diego counties produce an immense amount of honey for export, and here is a fact that will be of interest to our honey-risers. Mr. H. BECKLEY of this county recently shipped a quantity of honey to New York by way of the Isthmus, and yesterday received his first returns from it. After deducting all expenses he finds that he has netted a fraction over nine cents per pound on the shipment. This is over two cents more than can be realized from sales in San Francisco. Mr. BECKLEY says that by shipping per railroad about one half cent per pound may be added to the above figures.

Annual Report of the Secretary of the S. C. Mutual Aid Association.

The following extract is taken from the report of the Secretary, L. M. Holt, to the annual meeting of the members of the Mutual Aid Association held on Tuesday, October 27th, at the Secretary's office, in this city: "The past year has been a difficult one for the Association, during the eleven months since we adopted the by-Laws of the Association, and commenced work. The year has been a prosperous one, but until the last two or three months money has been scarce, members using every cent to mature and save their crops. As soon as they began to get returns for their crops money matters became easier, and the people felt more inclined to look out for the future. The result is that about two-fifths of our entire membership has been received during the past two months, and applications are now coming in at the rate of sixty per month, and this rate is on the increase."

The Association is out of debt, has nearly fourteen hundred dollars at interest and money in the Treasury. Our system of work has become fully established and has received the full endorsement of the law at the hands of the last Legislature, and the almost unanimous endorsement of the people.

The Alden Process.

Yesterday we paid another visit of investigation to the Alden fruit drying factory of Mr. GEO. B. DAVIS. We found everything in fine condition.

Although these works have been in operation but a few days there is an air of business activity about them that reminds one of the aspect and surroundings of an old and long successful establishment. Everything is moving along with the regularity of clock-work, and the bins of raisins and dried fruit that meet the eye on the third and fourth floors of the factory are almost enough to discredit the statement that the grapes, apples and pears from which it was made hung on the parent stem less than a week ago. An idea of the rapidity with which the Alden process preserves fruit may be derived from this fact: At four o'clock on Friday afternoon Mr. WILLIAMS brought to the factory a quantity of figs fresh picked from trees. These figs were put through the evaporating process during the night and at 9 o'clock next morning a box of them dried and neatly packed were on exhibition in the pavilion, where they were pronounced a first-class article by our best judges. To many this statement will seem incredible, but it is true in every respect.

At the factory there are a couple of tons of raisins made from the white muscat grape and perhaps three tons of Mission grape raisins which will be packed and shipped to San Francisco in a few days. Mr. DAVIS exhibited a box of raisins picked from the stems before curing. They were a splendid sight, and a trial proved them as rich to the taste as they were beautiful to the eye. There is also a large quantity of pear ready for packing. The receiving department of the factory is well stocked with grapes, figs and pears and more fruit is arriving every hour. The evaporators are constantly employed in washing and laying the fruit on the wire screens which carry it from the top to the bottom of the evaporators. Mr. DAVIS has assumed charge of the establishment in person, and is confident that he is able to place in the market Alden prepared fruit which cannot be surpassed in any respect by the factories of other portions of the State.

Los Angeles Valley Apples.

Many years ago somebody determined not to be pleased with California products, went back to the other side and said it was true that California produced the largest fruit in the world but that its size and beauty was all there was of it; that it was so wanting in flavor as to be almost tasteless. This story was handed around and finally found a place in the columns of the newspapers, where of course, everybody read it. From that day to this, there have been many among our visitors who cannot find the rich flavor of the New England fruit in the apples and peaches of California. We have not yet tasted Eastern fruit for a score of years, and cannot, of course, set up as a judge of it, but we have always had a suspicion that California fruit was as luscious and delicately flavored as that of any other portion of the world, and within the past few weeks we have experimented on the palates of gentlemen from Canada and the Northeastern States, where they grow as fine flavored apples and peaches as can be found anywhere. These gentlemen after tasting our fruit pronounced it equal in flavor to any they have ever tasted. This explodes the old story about tasteless fruit. Now a word as to Los Angeles peaches. It has been said so often that people who do not investigate for themselves have come to believe it that our temperate zone fruits are not of fine flavor. We never believed this and in the other case we have taken some pains to collect information on the subject. Some weeks since Mr. SHAW of this city brought to the HERALD office a basket of as large and fine flavored peaches as can be produced from a New England orchard. This was the opinion of half a dozen disinterested judges. Now of apples. Yesterday Mr. J. E. McCOMAS left at this office samples of the Russet, Greening, Baldwin, Bellflower, Rambo and several other varieties of apples from his orchard at Compton, which were both large and well flavored—hard to surpass in either quality. Any amount of evidence may be offered to show that Los Angeles valley is as well adapted to the raising of fine flavored apples and peaches as it is to the production of the best quality of citrus fruits.

The Mutual Aid has been issued regularly each month during the past year, and has been nearly self-sustaining. The small deficiency in The Mutual Aid account occurred during the first part of the year; the paper now more than pays expenses.

During the year the Association has secured a large amount of work from traveling and local agents on light commissions—the total amount of commissions paid averaging only about $2 to each member. After the Association has been a prosperous one, but until the last two or three months money has been scarce, members using every cent to mature and save their crops. SUNDAY READING.

THE OLD MAN GOES TO THE FAIR.

I'm very dusty and tired wife; I've just come from the Fair. I've got my pipe and tobacco, and I'll smoke in my easy chair; It's a good place for a playin' for old men like me; It's the same work a seatin' where every one wants to see. Our men are a runnin' down; they're not like us, they're not as good as we are. When you took the prize for bread and butter as yellow as gold, I was bein' speakin' for real men like me; I'm not talkin' about the down road to hell; well, I'll be in the same place as you, but I'm speakin' the same truth. For racin', bein', drinkin' are the loss of our young men.

What I have to say is this: I'm not talkin' about the down road to hell; well, I'll be in the same place as you, but I'm speakin' the same truth. For racin', bein', drinkin' are the loss of our young men.

The Circus.

For the fifth time since coming to our city, Montgomery Queen's tent was packed to its utmost capacity last night. Our people are not slow to appreciate this circus and menagerie combination as the best which has ever visited Southern California, as they prove in the most substantial manner by visiting it. In all of its appointments the show is first-class.

The menagerie comprises, beside the animals usually carried with a traveling company, many that are seldom found outside of zoological gardens in large cities, and all the finest of their species. The performances in the ring is equally creditable. There many novel and artful the conduct and general management of the entertainment and many features which usually pass current but will hardly do for a polite audience are dispensed with.

Among the corps of performers, Miss Mollie Brown comes first. She is said to be the only lady somersault rider in the world. Her movements are all graceful and her riding the most daring and artistic which we have ever seen in the arena. Leopold and Gertrude carry off the palm as trapeze performers; Romeo Sosman and some fine feats of somersault riding.

Alfred and Billy Burke do the clown with some of his comicalities left out, and Chas. and Carrie Austin introduce their musket practice as a novel and attractive feature of the entertainment. Mlle. Jeanette Eissler, as a tight-rope performer has few equals and no superior, and Signor

Fuentes accomplishes some extraordinary feats of tumbling and contortion. These artists are ably supported by full troops of equestrians, acrobats, voltegers and gymnasts. Mr. Quinn has certainly shown masterly hand in collecting and condensing this fine array of attractions. He deserves well from the public and will doubtless receive his full reward. In closing, we must not neglect to mention the advance agent, Mr. Pell, and Mr. Geo. S. Cole, the Treasurer of the company. They are both affable gentlemen and adorn their calling. From here the circus will proceed to San Buenaventura and thence up the coast.

THE RACES.

An Exciting Contest between Echo and Vaughan—Echo the Winner—Report of the Other Races.

SIXTH DAY.

The attendance at the racing park was large, but there were not as many ladies on the grand stand as on previous days of the fair. The sporting classes were represented in large numbers and large sums of money changed hands on the result. Vaughan in the two-mile trotting race was the favorite with the sports, and their favors looked like thunder-clouds when Echo came up to the score a winner.

THE FIRST RACE.

First came a trotting race, free for all horses in the District (Echo and Overland barred) that never trotted for money; mile heats, best three in harness. Purse $400—$250 to first, $100 to second and $50 to third.

At the pool stand there was considerable betting, Irene being the favorite at odds of $50 to $10. Irene won the pole and shot ahead from the start and was in the front until she won the heat. The run was tame until on the last half mile, when both animals were put to their metal. Irene, however, kept in front, coming in about a length and a half ahead. Time 4:11.

There was but little excitement at the pool stand, as it was about a foregone conclusion that Irene would win the race. The three-year-old, although bound to one of the trotting horses on the coast, could not hold his own with Irene, who has for several years been the winner in most of the running races in this section.

The mare in the second heat went ahead at the start and Regent had the due clear around the track. The first mile was made in two minutes. On the second mile Irene had the lead from first to last. Time 3:52.

The Theatre.

There was a crowded house at the theatre last night and the entertainment was of sterling worth, Miss Florence Kent, in particular, acting with consummate skill.

At the request of theatre-goers Miss Kent will give three more entertainments in Los Angeles, to-night and on Monday and Tuesday nights. Owing to the many amusements presented last week this troupe did not receive the general support it merited, and the theatre should be thronged for the next three nights.

Closing of the Pavilion.

At the Rink last evening there was a good attendance of sight-seers—probably the largest of the week, excepting that of the opening on Tuesday night. The articles on exhibition appeared to their best advantage and really made the most complete display of the week, as everything like confusion in the arrangement had subsided and many late contributions were to be seen which had made their appearance only on that or the preceding night. Among this class we noticed a box of dried tigs added to the collection of Mr. Geo. B. Davis. Despite the hurry and confusion incident to the starting of his works, Mr. Davis has made a display of fruits cured by the Alder process of which he may well be proud. Probably no feature of the exhibition has attracted more attention or been the subject of more favorable comment than this, and it well may be; for the samples displayed, though slight perhaps in themselves, mark not only a triumph of individual enterprise, but an epoch in the growing industries of Southern California.

Next to Mr. Davis' collection, in a practical line, the American wool-shearing and horse-clipping machine exhibited by Col. W. S. Davis was most in favor. If this machine proves what it reasonably promises, it will revolutionize the methods now in vogue of sheep-shearing and will become as valuable in that line as the sewing machine has in sewing and equally superior to the old style.

Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Baker had their display of sewing machines and repairing shop in full trim. Thirteen machines were shown, making the largest collection in the Pavilion. Besides there were fixtures, needles, oil-tins, tools, &c., pertaining to sewing machines to be seen in the collection. Mr. and Mrs. Baker have the agency for the Secor, American, Florence, Weed, Davis, Domestic, New Buckeye, and the new patent Sewing Machine engine. They make a specialty of repairing and exchanging machines of all styles.

The most prominent feature of the collection last evening was the award of premiums offered by the society for the best specimens of composition, the best original poem and superior writing and drawing; the contestants were numerous and the competition keen. The committee appointed to receive and decide upon the contributions consisted of Judge O'Malley, Chairman, Prof. Lawlor, Rev. Dr. White, Rev. Mr. Packard, Mrs. Ben C. Truman, Mrs. Gillette and Mrs. Hubbard. The premiums, as announced, by the Chairman were as follows:

For the best original poem, Miss Yda Addis, Senior Class, High School; premium, $18.

For original composition, Miss Yda Addis; first premium, $10.

For original composition, Miss Jessie Peck, Senior Class, High School; second premium, $5.

For penmanship, Everett White, Middle Class, High School; first premium, $10.

For penmanship, Miss Nellie White, Middle Class, High School; second premium, $5.

For drawing, Tiffany Williams, First Grade, Grammar School; first premium, $10.

For drawing, Jacob Bohn, First Grade, Grammar School; second premium, $5.

Through the kindness of the author and the gentlemen and ladies com-

Echo shot ahead over a length and then flew down the home-stretch, Vaughan's driver bringing down the whip without stint—but all in vain, for Echo kept the lead and goes under the wire four lengths ahead, the Moor one hundred yards to the rear. Time 5:19. Heat and race given to Echo, second money to Vaughan, third money to the Moor.

At the church makes signs of mourning—Mourning for her cherished dead—Walls of the church are hung with black. Walls of the soul just fled.

Passes by the holy temple—Bare the head in reverence there; For it seems a solemn presence—Bare it in the air.

Not a death-bell tolls a mournful knell; Not a murmur of woe approaches; For within the little coffin.

Lies her first and only child.

Closes the tiny hands are folded; Fast the tiny lids are closed; And the tiny spirit is riven.

Hark! another chime is sounding—Who is that so lowly laid?

Lovely though in death was she—she was a woman.

She was a woman, she was a maid.

The Massachusetts Republicans demand.

A Times Washington special says: "A well-known Massachusetts Republican, who reached Washington this morning says there is a good deal of disorganization in the party ranks there. The opposition platform is driving off thousands of Republicans from the support of the ticket in the cities and towns where the license policy is favored. It is not thought that the State ticket will be lost, although a large reduction of the usual Republican majority is conceded. The Opposition are very confident of securing three if not four of the Congressmen. Gen. Banks is sure of his election. The attempt of his Republican opponent to carry the workers in the Charlestown Navy Yard against him has failed. In the Lowell district the supporters of Ayr promises to elect Turbot, his opponent with the President of Boston and Albany Railroad, will carry the Springfield District. It is said that Republican disaffection in one of the Boston District gives the opposition a favorable show there.
